

December 4, 2016

18 Things We Want From Design Miami

By Paul Laster

Lapo Binazzi, Gorbaciova Coat Stand, 1986. Courtesy R & Company, New York

Flaunting a refreshed gallery program and new layout, Design Miami returned to Miami Beach this week for the 12th edition of the highly touted international design fair.

Offering 31 of the world's best design galleries, 6 cabinet of curiosity presentations and 9 design collaborations with such major brands as Fendi, Maison Perrier-Jouët and Airbnb, Design Miami mixes modern and contemporary furniture, lighting, jewelry and the occasional piece of fine art with joyful finesse.

Solo presentations lead the way this year, with Salon 94 featuring vintage cabinets by famed architect and industrial designer Gaetano Pesce alongside his new resin vases and Elisabetta Cipriani exhibiting one-of-a-kind wearable sculptures made from precious materials by Italian artist Giorgio Vigna.

Scroll through the images below to view more of the objects of desire that we want to take home.

Giorgio Vigna, Cosmo necklace, 2015. Courtesy Elisabetta Cipriani, London

Konstantin Grcic, Hieronymus Minero, 2016. Courtesy Galerie kreio, Paris and London

Wendell Castle, Molar Group Baby Molar Chair, 1969. Courtesy R & Company, New York

Pia Manu, Coffee table, 1970. Courtesy Magen H Gallery, New York

Jean Royère, Persan 8-branched wall lamp, ca. 1950.
Courtesy Galerie Patrick Seguin, Paris and London

Sebastian Brajkovic, Sleipnir, 2015. Courtesy Carpenters Workshop Gallery, Paris, London and New York

Anat Shifan, Sculpture from the Flora series, 2015. Courtesy Hostler Burrows, New York